NATIONAL Racial Equity Initiative FOR SOCIAL JUSTICE

In response to the historically unlevelled playing field for minorities, and the recent protests and police killings of unarmed African Americans, CBCF created the National Racial Equity Initiative for Social Justice (NREI). NREI will place Social Justice Policy Fellows in the U.S. Congress for 12 months; establish endowed social justice scholarships for students attending Historically Black Colleges and Universities; and advance racial equity and human rights in research, data, analysis, and public policy related to criminal justice reform for maximum impact in Black communities.

“We have always envisioned a society where African Americans can realize basic human rights. Our nation is hurting and longing after much-needed reform. With the injustices that have plagued this country and have disproportionately affected people of color, it is important that CBCF be on the right side of history to help nurture the global Black community, and continue to develop leaders, inform policy, and educate the public.”

Tonya Veasey

Interim President and CEO
Congressional Black Caucus Foundation, Inc.

“CBCF is answering the global call for action to honor George Floyd, Breonna Taylor and countless others in our country’s past—even predating Jim Crow—who have reached their demise at the hands of law enforcement or imprisonment due to a failed justice system. Our new initiatives will advance educational opportunities for Black students and explore reform through the policy lens of education, economic opportunity, incarceration, the courts, and law enforcement, and ultimately, propose policy solutions.”

Rep. Cedric L. Richmond

Chair, CBCF’s Board of Directors
